

(Mobile library) File size: 70.Mb

Feeling Outnumbered? How to Manage and Enjoy Your Multi-dog Household

Karen B. London, Ph.D.
Patricia B. McConnell, Ph.D.

Feeling Outnumbered?
How to Manage and Enjoy Your Multi-dog Household
SECOND EDITION

PMC

*Par Karen B. London Ph.D., Patricia B., Ph.D. McConnell
ebooks | Download PDF | *ePub | DOC |
audiobook*

Dtails sur le produit Rang parmi les ventes
: #498862 dans eBooksPubli le: 2008-04-
06Sorti le: 2008-04-06Format: Ebook
Kindle

(Mobile library) Feeling Outnumbered?
How to Manage and Enjoy Your Multi-dog
Household

Par Karen B. London Ph.D., Patricia B., Ph.D. McConnell : Feeling Outnumbered?
How to Manage and Enjoy Your Multi-dog
Household before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Feeling Outnumbered? How to Manage and Enjoy Your Multi-dog Household:

Download

Read Online

Description : Description du produit Looking for some tips to create a little order out of the canine chaos in your home? Concerned that there might be some tension between two of the dogs in your pack? Not sure if all that growling during play means trouble or not? This booklet has the answers to those questions and many more. Written to help you maximize the joy of living in a multi-dog household, it emphasizes the use of Ethology and Positive Reinforcement to teach your dogs to be polite and patient instead of demanding and pushy. Filled with practical ideas about keeping life fun in houses that have two dogs or many more than that, Feeling Outnumbered is a great resource for all multiple dog owners, whether novice or professional.

Prsentation de l'diteur"Written with Patricia McConnell and Karen London's extensive knowledge of both theory and practicality, (not to mention their sense of humor), it provides clear and workable ideas to make living with a pack of dogs fun and fulfilling. This is a great resource if you're looking for some dog training tips to create a little order out of the canine chaos in your home, or wondering how in the world you'll manage the entire pack for a walk around the neighborhood. Perhaps you're concerned that there is tension between two of the dogs in your pack or whether your dog's play might escalate into aggression. This expanded and updated booklet has the answers to those questions and many more. Written to help you maximize the joy of living in a multi-dog household, it emphasizes the use of ethology and positive training methods to teach your dogs to be polite and patient instead of demanding and pushy. Filled with practical ideas about keeping life fun in houses that have two dogs or many more than that, Feeling Outnumbered is a great resource for all multiple dog owners whether novice or professional.

"Presentation de l'auteur" Written with Patricia McConnell and Karen London's extensive knowledge of both theory and practicality, (not to mention their sense of humor), it provides clear and workable ideas to make living with a pack of dogs fun and fulfilling. This is a great resource if you're looking for some dog training tips to create a little order out of the canine chaos in your home, or wondering how in the world you'll manage the entire pack for a walk around the neighborhood. Perhaps you're concerned that there is tension between two of the dogs in your pack or whether your dog's play might escalate into aggression. This expanded and updated booklet has the answers to those questions and many more. Written to help you maximize the joy of living in a multi-dog household, it emphasizes the use of ethology and positive training methods to teach your dogs to be polite and patient instead of demanding and pushy. Filled with practical ideas about keeping life fun in houses that have two dogs or many more than that, Feeling Outnumbered is a great resource for all multiple dog owners whether novice or professional.

About the author Karen B. London, Ph.D. After graduating from UCLA with a biology degree, Dr. Karen London received her doctorate in Zoology from the University of Wisconsin, where she studied aggression and the interactions between species that live together. For her dissertation, she researched tropical social wasps in Venezuela, Mexico, and Costa Rica and has enjoyed the switch from wasps to dogs as they are easier to work with and less aggressive. Dr. London began volunteering at Dog's Best Friend, Ltd. in 1997, and became a full time Applied Animal Behaviorist and Trainer there in 1999. In between, she spent a year in New Hampshire teaching play training classes, supervising doggy day care, and grooming dogs. Dr. London does private consultations for dogs with behavioral problems, specializing in canine aggression and play. She also teaches training classes, writes about dog training and behavior, and gives speeches. She and her husband Rich live with their dog Buggy, who is half Black Lab and half handsome stranger.

Patricia B. McConnell, Ph.D. received her doctorate in Zoology from the University of Wisconsin researching communication between people and dogs. She is the owner of Dog's Best Friend, Ltd., which offers family dog training classes and treatment for serious behavioral problems, where she and Dr. London specialize in the evaluation and treatment of aggression in dogs. She is Assistant Adjunct Professor in Zoology at the University of Wisconsin, teaching "The Biology and Philosophy of Human/Animal Relationships." Co-host of Wisconsin Public Radio's "Calling All Pets", Dr. McConnell gives advice about behavior problems on over 110 radio stations across the country. She is the behavior columnist for the BARK magazine and a Consulting Editor for the Journal of Comparative Psychology. Currently she is working on a book for Ballantine/Random House titled "The Other End of the Leash, comparing human behavior to that of our four-legged best friends. She can be found either nestled within a pack of four dogs, one cat and a flock of sheep, or traveling to give speeches and seminars around the country.