Biographie de l'auteur Amal Kharbichi lives in Paris with her husband, son, and daughter. Born in France to Moroccan parents, Kharbichi struggled and failed to fit both Moroccan and French cultural standards before embracing her unique position as a citizen of the world who found herself shaped by many cultures beyond her native ones. Over the past fifteen years, Kharbichi has become an expert in developing the means to bring people of different nationalities together without strife or struggle. She worked for multinational companies on social and environmental responsibility for the French government and on political strategy for the United Nations. Kharbichi is a graduate of the Paris Institute of Political Studies, Sciences-Po Paris. Kharbichi's international colleagues routinely sought her out for insights and tips about Paris. In Paris, Kharbichi succeeds in giving vacationers the tools to open new territories within themselves while exploring Paris and meeting Parisians on their own terms.
