Description :

Prsentation de l'diteurIf you like cozy village mysteries with flair and flavor, eccentric characters, secrets from the past, and two successful snoops, dont miss this free mystery with the most! This cozy whodunit finds the elderly Dr. Bill Whitehall dead in the churning waters of the mill at the bottom of his garden in Coppins Locks. But was he alone?Monica Goodwood and her business partner, Erin OMalley, owners of Rocking Horse Antiques, dive into discovering the truth about the demise of the old curmudgeon, a man whose best bedside manner was reserved for animals in need and not people in pain. The idyllic village of Coppins Locks with its British style pub, cozy tea shop, trendy boutiques and colourful characters is abuzz with curiosity. Who wanted the grumpy old man dead? Was it one of the locals, who all seem to have alibis tinged with lies, or is the death linked to the past with hidden details kept secret for decades? And why does the old black and white photograph found in a bureau seem so important to somebody? At least one person in town knows the truth, but nobody is talking! And, the biggest fear in this quiet backwater is, will the killer strike again? This mystery is a free Kindle cozy, book 1 in the Coppins Lock Mysteries featuring Monica Goodwood and Erin O'Malley. Larissa Reynolds writes: Loved this little mystery set in the quaint town of Coppin's Locks. Lots of delightful and quirky characters led by antique shop owners and amateur sleuths Monica and Erin. Looking forward to more in this series!
